New Principal of Dixons McMillan

Dear Families,

Following on from my recent letter announcing that I will be moving on from my role as Principal of Dixons McMillan Academy, I am delighted to share that Adam Clough will take on the role of Principal from September.

Adam has been with Dixons for several years and has held a number of senior leadership positions in schools across our trust. He knows our school well and I have every confidence that he will have a strong impact as Principal at our academy.

Adam has asked me to share this message with you all:

"I am absolutely delighted and honoured to be joining the team at Dixons McMillan. Having worked within Dixons for a number of years, I am proud to continue this work at McMillan, which I know to be a school with a strong sense of community, high expectations and genuine care for our students.

I am excited to work with staff, students and families to ensure that every young person feels welcome, achieves highly, and experiences lessons that are both rigorous and joyful. At the heart of this is our shared commitment to resilience, integrity and courtesy and to creating a school where all of our students can thrive and contribute positively to our community.

I look forward to meeting you over the coming weeks and months, and will be in touch in due course with opportunities for families to come together, ask questions and get to know me."

Adam will be in touch when he joins and I know that he is keen to meet as many families as possible. In the meantime, if you have any questions, please contact me.

Yours faithfully,

Kat Lang
Principal
